ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to thank all the community organizations and local leaders identified in this collection for their time and support in providing us with a remarkable education about the diverse challenges and opportunities in the City of Kamloops. Without their openness and patience we would not have been able to understand the complexity of their efforts, and we hope that we have been able to capture the richness of their endeavours through this work. We would also like to acknowledge and thank all the students at Thompson Rivers University who over the years have participated in the various research opportunities that inform many of the important outcomes and insights in our chapters. Through their own interest in our community, they have enhanced our teaching skills and heightened our attentiveness to local opportunities for community-engaged research for more undergraduate researchers. Notable recognition goes to the various anonymous reviewers of this collection who have all provided critical but supportive examinations, and deepened the quality of the insights and evaluations by helping us to better frame and integrate the varied themes and issues in this collection.

Special credit is due to Dr. Will Garrett-Petts for recognizing early on the value of a “leadership and local learning perspective” as a means to organize quite disparate themes into a cohesive work. His resolute support for this project has kept us engaged and committed to completing this collection, and he has offered, over many years, critical insights and lessons on how a university can be an active supporter of community initiatives and a better community partner. In addition, we would like to thank all the staff of the Office of Research and Graduate Studies for their support and advice in promoting community-engaged research and the early outcomes from this collection. To this end, we would like to acknowledge the support of the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC) through the Community-University Research Alliances (CURA) grants that made the outcomes of this collection possible, and continue to generate enduring results in our city. Lastly, we would like to thank all the family and friends who have provided their own observations and insights on “life in the small city” that have further served to enrich this collection.
