

Even Your Pajamas

JULIE LOCKHART

are aloof

stiffened on the winter clothesline correct
they won't allow themselves to wave in the wind
but when I

bring them in
they shed their ice
a sublimation that releases
the tender redolence
of our newly made bed they begin to

fold
so
easily

From an initial MSc and work in environmental biology, JULIE LOCKHART's career has evolved into a meld of adult education, editing, and writing. In June 2010, she will graduate from the University of Calgary with a BA in English, a degree she considered years ago while writing tormented poetry as a teen.

---

TO SUBMIT YOUR POEM FOR THE AUTUMN 2010 COMPETITION, OR FOR INFORMATION: maboyd@ucalgary.ca

UNIVERSITY OF CALGARY
POEM
of the season

Fifth Edition Spring 2010

Sponsored by Libraries & Cultural Resources and the Creative Writing Research Group